Duhallow

Duhallow is a rural area of about 1,000 square miles located in North West Co. Cork and East Kerry. The area conforms closely to the ancient barony of Duhallow from which it gets its name. The area has a population of around 30,000 in 28 communities and includes the four small market towns of Rathmore, Kanturk, Millstreet and Newmarket. It is primarily an agricultural economy with an estimated 1,800 farms, the majority of which have Dairying as the dominant enterprise. Non-farm employment is also based very substantially on agriculture.

Duhallow GAA Clubs

GAA (The Gaelic Athletic Association) is an organisation which promotes Gaelic Games - traditional Irish sports, such as Hurling, Camogie, Gaelic football, Handball, and Rounders. The organisation also promotes Irish music and dance, and the Irish language. It is the largest and most popular organisation in Ireland with some 800,000 members out of the island's population of almost 6 million. Almost every town and village in Ireland has a GAA club, which plays hurling or Gaelic football, or usually both.
